Ends Campaign

"We of Pickaway-co owe Martin L. Davey a debt of gratitude," George G. Adkins, chairman of the Democratic executive committee, said Friday night at a rally of local clubs and candidates in the courthouse.

"Pickaway-co has more employees on the state payroll in this administration than ever before," Mr. Adkins stated. "We have more than doubled our representation on state positions. It is the duty of every citizen of this county to show the governor our gratitude for this recognition."

300 Attend Rally
Mr. Adkins served as chairman of the rally, attended by about 300 persons, held in the courtroom. The meeting was sponsored by the Men's Democratic club.

The principal speaker of the meeting was Joseph A. Shearer, Columbus, a member of the Democratic speakers' bureau. Shearer arrived late for the meeting and spoke briefly, praising Roosevelt, Davey and J. Freer Bittinger, candidate for lieutenant governor.

"If it hadn't been for the AAA program the farmers of Kansas wouldn't have had enough money to pay their taxes for Landon to balance the budget," Mr. Shearer said. "Lincoln freed the slaves and Roosevelt has freed the industrial slaves. Republicans contend the Democrats have encroached on the Constitution. They know that is a falsehood. The Constitution is closer to the people today than ever before."

"Ohio has never had a governor that measured up to Martin L. Davey. The motto of his office has been service to the people of this

D. A. R. Marks Six More Graves in Pickaway-co

Impressive Ceremony Led By Mrs. G. P. Hunsicker; Resting Places of Two of Own Members Visited;
32 Located By Chapter

Continuing its fine work of locating graves of often long-forgotten Revolutionary War veterans, the Pickaway Plains chapter Daughters of the American Revolution during the last week marked four more burial places of veterans and honored two of their own deceased members, Mrs. Anna Millar Upton and Mrs. Anna Hall.

Graves of veterans included Benjamin Tallman on the Chester Peters farm in Walnut-twp, Joseph Clark on the Walter Leist farm in Washington-twp, Jacob Ziegler in Forest cemetery, and Thomas Emerson on the Emerson farm in Pickaway-twp.

A number of members of the D.A.R. with Mrs. G. P. Hunsicker, regent of the Pickaway Plains chapter, presiding took part in the marking ceremony.

Mrs. Upton's grave is in Forest cemetery and Mrs. Hall's in Reber Hill cemetery. The former was a daughter of Michael and Sarah Hickman Millar, and an ex-regent of the Seattle, Wash. chapter of the D.A.R., having joined in 1922. Her ancestor was Isaac Millar of Hardy-co, Virginia, a Revolutionary War veteran. Mrs. Hall's parents were Albert and Sarah E. Hoover. Her ancestor was Paul Kramlich of Lehigh-co, Pa. who served as a private in the Sixth Battalion, Northampton Company.

Mr. Tallman was a Berks-co, Pa. native. He was a private in Armand's corps enlisting in Virginia March 27, 1782. His descendants are Mrs. Guy Dowsy of Columbus and Chester Peters of Walnut-twp.

Mr. Clark, likewise, was a native of Pennsylvania. He served for three years in the Revolutionary War in Capt. Irwin's Company. After 16 months he was wounded in the battle of Monmouth.

His descendants are Mrs. Artie Griest Lucas Row and Miss Nellie Demman.

Jacob Ziegler was another Pennsylvania native, serving as ensign in the War of the Revolution in the battalion of Capt. Jonathan Jones under Col. John Bull. He was retired from the army after being commissioned.

Mr. Ziegler, the D. A. R. has learned, originally owned the ground on which Circleville now stands. His descendants include E. I. Gephart, the Pedrick sisters, all the children of the late G. F. Wittich, and Mrs. Byron Eby and Mrs. Chester Lutz.

Mr. Emerson, ancestor of Mrs. Lettie Fryback Shaner, came to Pickaway-co from Virginia in 1806, one of the county's true pioneers.

Several descendants of the honored soldiers attended the grave marking ceremony.

The Daughters of the American Revolution have not located and marked 32 such graves.

FARM HAND CONFESSES

MURDERING TWO GIRLS

PORTLAND, Me., May 9.—(UP)—James H. Folsom, 39, a former inmate of the state reformatory was held today as the self-confessed murderer of two young girls who he attacked.

SLAYER OF GIRL, 17, IS CONVICTED

Mansfield Jury Grant Mercy in "Love" Murder

MANSFIELD, May 9.—(UP)—Attorneys for Charles Wilson, 22, convicted of killing his 17-year-old sweetheart, Jean Moorhead, but saved from the electric chair by a jury's recommendation of mercy, announced today they would ask for a new trial.

The jury of 11 men and one woman deliberated less than four hours late yesterday before voting Wilson guilty of first degree murder. Six ballots were taken. On the first ballot four jurors voted for the death penalty, it was learned.

Judge C. H. Huston was about to send the jury out to dinner at 6 p. m. when the agreement was reached.

Messengers were sent to summon the principals of the trial into the courtroom. Wilson was brought back from the jail across the street and sat at a table with his father, M. J. Wilson, and his uncle, Howard Wilson of Chicago. Mr. and Mrs. Ralph H. Moorhead, parents of the slain girl, were not present when the verdict was read.

When the verdict was given, Wilson collapsed on the table and sobbed. His father also wept.

Jean Moorhead was killed the night of April 4 while seated in an automobile with Haskell Smith in front of her home. The defense claimed Wilson shot her in a fit of jealous passion.

The trial opened last Monday.

"Be Your Natural Self" Advises Oldest Mother

Don't Have Mean Thoughts in Your Heart and
First 100 Years Easy. Says Woman, 104

Mrs. Mary N. Rice

"BE YOUR natural self, take things easy and don't have mean thoughts in your heart."

That's the recipe for longevity and happiness of a gray-haired, blue-eyed little woman who is the oldest mother in America, according to a Mother's Day survey by the Golden Rule foundation. She is Mrs. Mary N. Rice, of Memphis, Tenn., who wears her 104 years now as lightly as she did her bridal veil back in the days of the Civil war.

"And," Mrs. Rice adds with a merry twinkle in her keen, blue eyes, "do that and you'll find the first hundred years are the happiest—not the hardest, as some folks say. After all, the greatest thing in life is happiness."

Mrs. Rice, marvel of physicians, is as alert today as many women who are a half century her junior. The only time she has been ill in recent years was two years ago when she fell down a flight of stairs on her way to answer the telephone—and sprained her wrist.

Born in Gadsden county, Fla., on March 15, 1832, when Andrew Jackson was president and Abraham Lincoln, then 23, was splitting rails on an Illinois farm, Mrs. Rice has lived through nearly two-thirds of the nation's history. And yet, she is as spry as a kitten and possesses a mind as keen as a razor blade.

"I eat what I want to eat," she says as she passes up a box of candy, "and do what a please except that lately my daughters insisted upon me having breakfast in bed; I don't like that idea a bit, but maybe they know best."

Awake at seven after listening in on the radio regularly until midnight, she likes her daily auto rides and doesn't mind driving fast "if I have confidence in the driver."

Mrs. Rice's husband, a doctor of the Civil war period, died in 1903. She makes her home in Memphis with two elderly daughters, a son having died at an advanced age several years ago. There are several grandchildren, but her only great-grandchild now is dead.

LAKEHURST NAVAL

STATION, N. J., May 9.—The German dirigible, Hindenburg, arrived today on the first official airship flight between Germany and the United States.

Its arrival marked the completion of regular passenger freight service between Europe and the United States, established a date in the history of air transport.

In a velvet smock, a less flight of 3,600 miles, Hindenburg leaped across the Atlantic and a half from the western ship record set by the German ship, Graf Zeppelin.

Lieut. Comdr. Gustav Eckener, U. S. navy's official observer of the flight, said the trip was "pleasant" and the dirigible's performance was "magnificent."

For the first time in every war, the Hindenburg, leaving from Lakehurst, N. J., on May 6, arrived in Germany on May 9.

The flight was one of the most trips to be made this summer, means that within a month, when the American clipper planes across the Pacific, it will be possible to travel around the globe in a matter of days, comfortably, by air.

COURAGE

In this modern world one must have courage to succeed. It takes courage to stand for what one believes to be right under all conditions. Anyone can stand for his beliefs if the crowd believes as he believes; but it takes a man to stand alone.

If the crowds around you were clamoring for war, if you were scorned because you resisted temptation, would you finally yield to the opinions of the majority?

Rudyard Kipling in the poem, "If," expressed the thought thus:

If you can keep your head when all about you
Are losing theirs and blaming it on you;
If you can trust yourself when all men doubt you,
But make allowance for their doubting too;

If you can wait and not be tired of waiting,
Or, being lied about, don't deal in lies,
Or being hated don't give way to hating,
And yet don't look too good, nor talk too wise;

If you can dream—and not make dreams your master;
If you can think—and not make thoughts your aim;
If you can meet with Triumph and Disaster
And treat those two impostors just the same;

If you can bear to hear the truth you've spoken
Twisted by knaves to make a trap for fools,
Or watch the things you gave your life to, broken,
And stoop and build 'em up with worn-out tools;

Yours is the Earth and everything that's in it,
And—which is more—you'll be a Man, my son!

This is the test. The blacksmith tests his metal in his forge. If it can not stand the test it is thrown away. So it is with life. Our lives are tested in the forge of life and if we lack the quality of courage, the blacksmith will find the metal faulty.

All of the people who have amounted to a great deal in this world have been given the test of courage and have not been found wanting.

We must have courage to stand our ground in the crisis, as did Lincoln.

Let us have the courage to live our lives as we believe we should, unafraid of the opinions of others.

—Mary Ellen Maxey.

According to observers at the Band Festival May 1 at Lancaster Circleville high school's band made one of the finest presentations of all.

Dick Plum received his honors on playing a trombone solo which received much applause. Wahnta Barnhart accompanied him.

Mr. Zaenglein, director of the band, is to be praised for his diligent and undying efforts to make the band a success. He is president of Central Ohio Band Association.

The Swan, a romantic comedy in three acts, by Ference Molnar is to be presented Wednesday, May 20 and Friday May 22 in the high school auditorium. Such players as Basil Rathbone, Eva Le Gallienne and Alison Skipworth were in this famous production when it appeared in New York, Detroit, and many other large cities.

"The Swan" is one of the most popular and effective of all amateur plays, for it is of the highest dramatic and literary quality, yet it is a play of humor and romance give it an appeal to High school or Little Theatre audiences alike.

Molnar received the Cross of the Legion of Honor for the French production of this play.

The plot of "The Swan" is so simple that it is hardly more than a background for Molnar's clever lines, flashing wit, and delicate pathos.

Much work has been done on this play. The cast has been holding rehearsals every day under the direction of Mr. Roy Bowen. The production staff has done much in making plans, obtaining properties, and advertising for this play.

TWO SCHOOL CLUBS TO ELECT OFFICERS

With the school year nearing the end the Epsilon Mu Sigma and Junior Girl Reserves are scheduled for the election of officers at their meetings next week.

The Epsilon Mu Sigma was headed during the past year by William Ammer, president; Jessie Dresbach, vice-president; and Ann Denman, secretary-treasurer.

Ruth Robinson, Harriet Harman, and Emily Gunning were president, vice-president, and secretary-treasurer of the Junior Girl Reserves during the year.

Miss Hitler is the faculty advisor of both groups.

300 DEMOCRATS NEAR PLEA FOR OHIO GOVERNOR

Chairman Adkins Cites Debt of Pickaway-Co to Ohio Executive

Davey will carry Franklin in the primary and in the election and it is the duty of the voters to give him Democratic workers.

"This administration has saved farms, and homes of the working man. This is the first time the government has aided the 'poor devil'."

Davey Business Man

Previous to Mr. Shearer's arrival at the meeting Hy Ruffner, Lancaster, candidate for senator, spoke briefly for Mr. Davey. He spoke of him as a business man and said he was associated with Davey as "a business man and boss."

"Democrats have no apologies to make," Mr. Ruffner said.

The meeting was kept moving at a lively pace due to the sweltering heat in the courtroom.

District candidates were limited in their remarks and county candidates were introduced only.

Candidates attending the meeting were: Charles H. Radcliffe, Fairfield-co. district delegate to the national convention to be held in Philadelphia; Clark K. Hunsicker, candidate for representative to the general assembly, who also spoke in behalf of Mr. Bittinger; Israel Blauser, Dr. James Lantz, D. T. Trew, Barton A. Holl, Harry B. Welch, and Harold Claypool, candidate for representative to Congress. Robert L. Immell was unable to attend the meeting and John F. Mader his campaign manager spoke in his behalf.

Others Presented

Others introduced were: Jemima K. Dungan, for member of the state central committee; W. M. Beavers, William H. Cline, William Curry, John E. Keller, Ralph H. May and Burr H. Rader, for county commissioners; George Gerhardt, for county prosecutor; Robert Colville, treasurer; Charles Radcliff and Frank Kline, Jr., for sheriff; Karl W. Kumler, Fairfield-co. for representative to congress, unexpired term; Harry G. Griner and M. C. Chamberlain, for county engineer, and Dr. E. L. Montgomery, candidate for coroner.

Adkins also introduced E. W. Weller, president of the Men's club, sponsors of the meeting; Harry L. Bartholomew, secretary of the club, and Ferd Pickens, Columbus, former Pickaway-co clerk of courts who attended the meeting.

"YOU say you served in France?" said the restaurant manager as he sampled Guy Rush's first soup.

"Yes, sir. Officers' cook for two years and wounded twice."

"You're a lucky man. It's a wonder they didn't kill you."

Mrs. Bell: "Was your husband cool when burglars broke in your house?"

Mrs. Foerst: "Cool! Why, he was so cool he shivered all over."

Do you know any tall stories? If you do please pass them on that someone else may enjoy a laugh.

DUVALL "BEES" ELECT MISS HEDGES PRESIDENT

Seventeen members of the Duvall "Busy Bee" 4-H club met Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Jesse Baum, leader, and named officers. They are: Marilyn Hedges, president; Dorothy Cook, vice president; Ruth Rinchart, secretary; Jessie Baum, treasurer; Mary Alice Barthelmas, reporter, and Eleanor Sark, recreation leader. The next club meeting will be held May 21.

Walnut-twp boys will organize a club May 18. The meeting will be held at the home of Herman Kuhlwein.

Remember When?

The cornerstone was laid for parish house at St. Philip's church.

This event took place Sunday, Oct. 7, 1917.

The Rt. Rev. Theodore Irving Reese, of Columbus, laid the stone, assisted by Circleville clergymen and clergymen from nearby cities. Addresses were given by Bishop Reese and W. T. Trump, superintendent of the Circleville public schools.

Rev. David McDonald was pastor of the church at the time the building was constructed. Although the building is commonly called the Parish house, it is known also as the Emery Memorial.

CLAYPOOL AND IMMELL TANGLE

Postal Card Sent Out of Chillicothean Basis

Political war had broken out Saturday between Robert L. Immell, Yellowbud, and H. C. Claypool, Chillicothe, both candidates for the Democratic nomination for congress. The cause was a postal card circulated by Mr. Claypool in which he informed his constituents, including Mr. Immell himself, that he (Claypool) was the only candidate in Ross-co capable of winning the nomination.

Immell's reply follows:

"It is amusing, indeed, to receive one of Mr. Claypool's postals informing me, along with hundreds of others, that he is the only candidate for Congress from Ross-co with any chance to win the nomination."

"It would appear from this postal that Mr. Claypool has either been in touch with the Omnipotent or else that he and his brother have decided that the best campaign is one of sheer 'brass.'"

"For my part, I believe confidently that the voters, in these times of stress, are looking for a representative who is willing to approach his job with true humility and not with the bragadocio spirit born of the mud-slinging school of politics."

"I believe firmly that the voters want a man who is not bossed by a small political clique, a man who has the experience and industry to give promise of representing the people of this district fairly and with integrity. My contacts with the farmer, with the federal government, with labor and with business are such as to convince me that I am qualified for the Congressional nomination."

"I believe that men and women are more interested in a candidate who trades in common sense than one who trades in arrogance."

Library Notice

The "WANT" index of any library always has, up at the front, a variety of subjects on which there is always a demand for the very latest information. Meeting one of these interests, the Circleville library has just received the 1936 edition of "The Aircraft Year Book" and "Flying for 1936"; the Junior Aircraft Year Book.

These books are the standard and authorized books issued each year by the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce of America, and are accepted for study and reference use by schools and colleges throughout the United States. The Public Library also has earlier editions of both publications.

"North to the Orient," by Anne Lindbergh, and "Sky Gypsy," by Claudia Cranston, are two books of the last year that are still on the library's list of most-called-for books. Even the smallest children are becoming air-minded and a number of recent picture books tell, by photographs and drawings, the story of travel through the air. Among the airplane books for younger children are the following:

The airplane book: a photographic picture book with a story. An airplane ride. Picture book of flying. Story book of aircraft.

DEBATE CLUB HOLD MEETING TUESDAY EVE

The Circleville High Debate Club will meet Tuesday evening at 7:30 in the high school building.

At this meeting the question for debate will be "Resolved: That Capital Punishment Should be Abolished."

Eugene Dewey and John Ruckler will uphold the affirmative side of the argument. The negative will be defended by William Ammer and Alyce Brown.

THEATRES

AT THE CLIFTONA

The unhappy observation that people are more eager to believe evil than good of their fellow man provided Lillian Hellman, brilliant Broadway playwright, with the theme of "These Three," her new screenplay for Samuel Goldwyn, which comes to the Cliftona theatre Sunday, with Miriam Hopkins, Merle Oberon and Joel McCrea in the title roles.

The powerful story, which offers picturegoers something entirely new in the way of gripping dramatic situations, shows how one scandalous lie, the invention of a spiteful twelve-year-old schoolgirl, hurled ruin, like a bombshell, into the lives of three innocent adults, who would otherwise have led a happy, peaceful existence.

Does Miss Hellman, who is under a long-term contract to Goldwyn, establish her point: Had the child said only complimentary

HOWARD S. IRWIN IS BOOSTED FOR SHERIFF'S POST

Howard S. Irwin, a lifelong resident of Pickaway county, a progressive citizen honored for honesty and integrity, is seeking the Democratic nomination for sheriff. Enthusiastic support of his candidacy by those who know him and his record best is sufficient evidence as to his ability to serve the people in the office to which he aspires.

Every qualification required of the county's chief peace officer is exemplified in Mr. Irwin. He is honest and fearless, knows the value of a dollar and he is imbued with the spirit to serve the taxpayer and to save him money wherever possible.

This candidate's actions, if honored by nomination and election, will speak well for your judgment in selecting him.

"Irwin for Sheriff" is a slogan that might very well be adopted by every thoughtful Democratic man and woman of Pickaway county.

Effectual Prayer

To teach his disciples that "men ought always to pray" and not grow faint in their praying, Jesus told a story of a widow who finally won the help of a cruel and unjust judge by her continual coming with her requests.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

To teach humility and sincerity in prayer he told the story of a Pharisee, who in his prayer boasted to God of how good he was, and of a Publican who humbly prayed "God be merciful to me a sinner."

Then some folks brought their babies to Jesus to bless them. The disciples scolded the parents for this, but Jesus called them to him saying, "Suffer the little children to come unto me and forbid them not: for to such belongeth the kingdom of God."

A rich young ruler came to Jesus asking how he might have eternal life. Jesus told him to sell all he had and give to the poor, then come and follow him. This he was unwilling to do because he loved riches more than his following. (GOLDEN TEXT—Luke 18:18)

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for May 10 is Luke 18:1-13, especially verses 1-14, the Golden Text being verse 13, "God, be merciful to me, a sinner.")

"PRAYER IS the soul's sincere desire, uttered or unexpressed—the motion of a hidden fire that kindles in the breast." In our study of this lesson's parables of our Lord dealing with earnestness and sincerity in prayer we should remember that these parables belong to the very last of his teachings spoken just before beginning his last journey to Jerusalem which ended in his death, as "he took unto him the twelve and said unto them, Behold, we go up to Jerusalem."

One of the big social parties of the Presbyterian church this spring will be held Friday evening when the Women's social club entertains with the Men's club members as guests.

Dr. Paul Reed, president of the Los Angeles Bible Institute, will speak at the Presbyterian church, Thursday, May 21, at a union service. The meeting will begin at 7:30 p. m.

DR. ALVIN E. BELL
(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for May 10 is Luke 18:1-13, especially verses 1-14, the Golden Text being verse 13, "God, be merciful to me, a sinner.")

"PRAYER IS the soul's sincere desire, uttered or unexpressed—the motion of a hidden fire that kindles in the breast." In our study of this lesson's parables of our Lord dealing with earnestness and sincerity in prayer we should remember that these parables belong to the very last of his teachings spoken just before beginning his last journey to Jerusalem which ended in his death, as "he took unto him the twelve and said unto them, Behold, we go up to Jerusalem."

One of the prime requisites of prayer is earnestness. This earnestness in our Lord's case was to manifest itself shortly in the "strong crying and tears" and bloody sweat of Gethsemane and there must be something of it in all effectual praying. Someone has referred to this necessity as "the indifference of God to anything less than the best there is in man—the determination of Heaven not to hear what we are not determined Heaven shall hear." This is the teaching of our Lord's parable of the importunate widow. Luke says the force of the parable was "to the end that they ought always to pray, and not to faint."

The unjost judge "who feared not God and regarded not man" had finally to yield to the persistent entreaties of the widow, lest, as he said, "she wear me out by her continual coming." But our God is no such unjust judge, but one who is both willing and "able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think, according to the power that worketh in us." So, Jesus says, "shall not God avenge his elect, that cry to him day and night? . . . I say unto you that he will avenge them speedily. Nevertheless, when the Son of man cometh shall we find faith on the earth?" Shall he find in us the faith of the importunate widow that keeps on praying and never loses heart?

Sincerity in Prayer

Another requisite to effective prayer is sincerity. This was taught in his parable of the Pharisee and the Publican. The Pharisee stood and prayed thus with himself, "God, I thank thee, that I am not as the rest of men, extortioners, unjust, adulterers, or even as this publican. I fast twice in the week; I give tithes of all that I get." Is this prayer or advertising? What a picture of capital "I"! There is no sense of need, but rather a sense of sufficiency that made prayer impossible.

Humility in Prayer

The true spirit of prayer is found in the prayer of the publican, who, "standing afar off, would not lift up so much as his eyes unto heaven, but smote his breast, saying, 'God, be merciful to me, a sinner.' This was effectual prayer. We know, from Jesus' command, 'I say unto you, This shall stand down to you house justified rather than the other: for every one that exalteth himself shall be humbled; but he that humbly himself shall be exalted.' Above everything else prayer demands 'a humble and contrite heart.'

MOTHER'S DAY

MOTHER'S DAY will release the flood gates of tender memories for many men and women. To others who still possess that heaven-loaned saint it ought to mean more than it ever can mean until the borrowed is returned.

It seems to be part of the human scheme of things that no matter how much a mother is appreciated in life, the real appreciation comes only after she is gone. This is not the experience of one son or of one daughter but of all children. It is like health, sunshine and the other treasures of life, valued most when gone.

Mother's Day is not an old day as such events are reckoned and in some respects is not essential to the true relations between mother and child. There are any number of sons and daughters to whom a Mother's Day is not necessary to show proper respect and devotion to that parent. To them every day is Mother's Day, but there are those whose affection is no less but whose thoughts go astray that do find in this yearly observance the suggestion for doing the thing that they really meant all along to do or to say but forgot.

The wearing of a flower, the writing of a letter, the pilgrimage to a grave, these and kindred expressions of child-love for mother are appropriate on Mother's Day. To those who have, Mother's Day should be embraced to its fullest opportunity, for there comes a time when Mother's Day makes the heart ache with longing and the sense of a terrible loss.

THE WEATHER MAN

DOING fun at the official weather forecaster seems to be one of the free-born American's inalienable rights. When father, unfolding the evening paper, remarks that "I see the weather man says it's going to rain tomorrow," the rest of the family is more or less expected to reply that the weather man is seldom known to be right, and that his forecasts are little better than inspired guesses.

Now, however, the weather man gets his vindication. The United States weather bureau, having checked up on its accounts for the past year, reveals that its forecasts were 89.6 per cent accurate throughout the year.

In other words, when the weather man says it is going to rain tomorrow, the chances are nine to one that he is right.

Italy's conquest of Ethiopia leaves League of Nations' diplomacy with about as severe a headache as it suffered from while Haile Selassie still was fighting.

What are the League powers to do? Call off their Italian sanctions? If they do they tacitly admit that the League is toothless, with completely ineffective sanctions it can bite. It may well expire, in short.

Or shall the League folk refuse to recognize Mussolini's acquisition of the Ethiopian realm? If they do that they simply will prolong a dangerous situation.

CHIEF AHEAD? It is not as if Italy really had defied the Ethiopians.

He says he "expects" to advise the GOP on the farm issue, probably will also take the stump in the corn-belt against the New Deal. . . . Federal Housing Administrator Stewart McDonald is rapidly winning fame as the Administration's boss poker and bridge player. Secretary Roper is proudly citing an item in a report by Lloyd's, the great British insurance company, ranking U. S. shipping with Sweden in losing the least number of vessels at sea last year. The same report also shows that more passengers lost their lives on American ships last year than in any of the six previous years, but Uncle Dan is not mentioning that. . . . So confident was Assistant Attorney General John Dickinson that the Supreme Court would not hand down its decision in the Guffey Coal Act case last week that he did not even go to the court chamber. Dickinson argued the government's side in the controversy.

So without consulting other party leaders, National Chairman Fletcher went out and organized the faculty of professors. . . . In an effort to strengthen the party's position in Michigan, the Democratic high command has persuaded Frank Murphy, High Commissioner of the Philippine Islands, to return and run for governor. CHAPTER 43

JOYCE CAME out of the store finally, after I had begun to think that she was lost again, and phoning to Van Every I told him Joyce was with me, safe. I could hear his sigh of relief over the phone. "Keep her with you, Maughan, and don't let her come back to the house. Get her a room in a hotel some place—better still, take her up to your suite at the Warrington. I won't feel safe about her if she's in the house. Will you do this?" I promised.

"I'll have some of her clothes brought here to the hotel this afternoon and get a companion for her. I have some applicants coming already and I'll hire the first good one." With that he hung up and I was free to take Joyce to lunch. We ate at a small coffee shop near by, as she only had an hour for lunch.

"Your uncle wants you to go up to my hotel and stay there a few days. He'll send your clothes, at least some of them, and get you another companion." I wished she would comply without argument, but I had little hope.

"If a deal, but I don't need a companion." She attacked the salad she had ordered.

"Listen, child, your uncle has been very good to you. Don't you realize that?" I was getting angry. Van Every was right about her contrary moods. "You can at least do something for him. He's worried about you. He has a right to be. Only this morning, sticking in his front door, we found a needle, exactly like the ones that killed Margalo and Laura Randall. If you'll do this for me, keep quiet in my rooms for a few days until this blows over. I'll persuade your uncle to let you work in your heart's content."

"Before she could answer, I continued: 'There's Allan Foster, too. What would he say if you exposed yourself to danger?'"

"You're certain there is danger?" Her tone for the first time was doubtful, less cocksure.

"Sure of it, Joyce, I know it."

"That needle was meant for me?"

"You or your uncle. I'm inclined to believe you're the one. Already this needle has killed two women. Another woman may be next. It isn't any joke, Joyce. It's murderously serious."

"Of course, I'll do as you say. You should have told me."

"I tried to, my dear, but you wouldn't let me," I reminded.

"I'm only doing this for uncle and Allan. As soon as the danger is over, I'll go back to work. You promised to persuade Uncle."

"I'll do my best."

"She insisted on going back to the store after we had finished lunch, and I was close to her side when she told the head of her department she was quitting. She gave some sort of an excuse. I don't remember what it was. The buyer was disappointed."

"Suddenly at the short time Joyce had been in the department, she had made a good sale."

"At any rate, the buyer told Joyce that whatever she wanted to come back, her job was open."

"The girl was happy as we left the store. Her face was radiant, and she smiled continually. 'What do you think of that?'"

"Fine," I mumbled, wishing we were in my rooms now, so nervous was I getting. I chose a cab carefully, and made sure again that all the windows were down. This time I also pulled down the shades. At the Warrington, I hurried Joyce upstairs, where the phone was ringing.

"Was Van Every saying he was sending up a woman, a Mrs. Sumner, who he thought would be all right. He had picked her out hastily, but she would do for the time being. She was bringing some of Joyce's clothes. He would be with her."

"My rooms were on the fifth floor, and faced Fifth avenue. Two rooms with a connecting door between, and then two doors into the hall. I locked them all except the connecting door, and waited patiently for Van Every. When he came I proposed to move out, and leave Joyce in command. I could get a suite farther down the hall, perhaps next door."

"In half an hour Van Every came, bringing Mrs. Sumner, who was a mature, refined woman. I liked her from the first, and felt Joyce could be trusted with her. She was soft spoken, well dressed, and pretty."

"Thanks, Maughan," Van Every

said, sinking into a chair. "Keyes was at the house when I left, and he approved the plans. Can't leave Joyce at the house." I showed him if anyone breaking into the room. He nodded, and seemed satisfied. While he and Joyce were talking, I arranged with the hotel clerk for another suite on the same floor. The rooms were not as close to Joyce as I had hoped, but they had to do. Van Every was in favor of getting another room, so the suite for Joyce would comprise three rooms, but I was opposed to this. The more rooms the more danger. I made him see my way at last, when Joyce chimed in to say that she was perfectly willing that a cot be moved into the bedroom for Mrs. Sumner.

In a moment I had alone with her, while her uncle was talking to Mrs. Sumner. I whispered a warning that she tell Van Every nothing about the woman in the store. We shouldn't worry him too much. I explained. She replied that she had no intention of doing so, that the woman was to remain a secret between us. And Keyes, I added, Keyes must be told.

I did this only to safeguard Van Every. He, of course, would shield Edith Bryce, as he loved her. The more he knew about her interest in Joyce the better.

It would have been so easy, I thought, as I pulled out some new books for Joyce to read, for Edith Bryce to have killed Margalo and Laura Randall. The taxi that Allan Foster had seen near the Van Every Monday night, Edith Bryce slipping into the house, hiding when she saw Foster coming down the stairs; when he was safely out, stealing up the stairs herself, firing the fatal shot. Only a second was needed for this. Down the stairs again, into the taxi, and away.

I frowned when I thought of the fake telegram to Margalo's apartment delivered at 1:30 by a messenger boy. That didn't fit Edith Bryce, but somehow this had to be solved.

Then I might have the time wrong. Margalo may have been killed before 1:15. The noise Laura Randall had heard. The strange crack. . . . Edith Bryce might have quietly let herself in with a key she had taken from Van Every. Before 1, before Joyce and Allan had come in. After firing the needle, on her way out, she might have heard Joyce and Foster at the front door, hidden herself in the living room. Stood there until Allan was out. Her own exit after this would be easy.

The taxi was waiting. That is, if the taxi were hers.

Miss Randall in her taxi going down Fifth avenue was an easy target with the window open. Edith Bryce must have been following her—perhaps she was in a taxi right behind the one Laura Randall and I took.

This noon, the needle in Van Every's door. Eleven when I came. Strange I hadn't noticed the needle when I came. It was 12 when I started to go, when Van Every and I reached the front door. Mrs. Bryce might casually have walked down the sidewalk, past the house, fired the needle and gone away.

If I had stayed a few minutes longer at Van Every's—if I had been a few minutes later at Gribble's I hated to think what might have happened.

Certainly, my presence had frightened Mrs. Bryce away. I blamed myself in a way for being crude about it, yet I had done nothing. I was sure, to raise her suspicions. Knock against her, cause her purse to fall. Anyone might have done that accidentally. She must have known when she recognized me that I had come to see Joyce. That I knew where the girl was.

Why hadn't I thought before that a woman might be the killer? The murderer of Margalo and Laura Randall? Both Keyes and I had assumed that the killer was a man. The coolness with which both crimes were committed, the lack of clues—all this had pointed to a man, we thought.

Yet Mrs. Bryce was not cool-headed. At least, she hadn't been to day when I surprised her at the drug counter with Joyce. She had been greatly flustered when I found her there. Else she wouldn't have rushed away so quickly. Something to that. At times Mrs. Bryce became confused. Only natural, I supposed, when she was caught off guard as I had caught her. This reasoning was all based on the premise that Mrs. Bryce was the murderer.

Why should she kill Margalo? Jealousy, perhaps. No, that was too vague. She had nothing there to be jealous of. Van Every had met her only the night of her death. I must find another reason, but the other reason wouldn't come to light.

Why should she kill Laura Randall? Because Laura Randall knew who had killed Margalo? Better! I was getting closer.

Why should Mrs. Bryce attempt to kill Joyce? If that was what she intended when I saw her in Gribble's basement? Jealousy? Maybe.

The puzzle was getting more complicated, but I was convinced that I held one piece in my hands—an important piece.

Before I left I would tackle Van Every about Mrs. Bryce—nothing to arouse his suspicions. But I must know something about her.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

A HEAVEN SENT PARTNER MR. B. L. AMES, Buffalo, N. Y., enthusiastically refers to his partner as "Heaven sent," because North's two bids show all South required to bid a grand slam, with confidence. That is such high praise that the happenings following Mr. Ames' deal should be worth while reviewing.

prevented East from showing his admirable support for hearts, which, had West known, perhaps would have caused West to bid a major suit grand slam, thereby saving many points. Third, North never would have encouraged South to bid even a small slam, had not North held the A-K of diamonds and also had several clubs for ruffing hearts. All that South claims is evident enough, after explanation.

The opening lead was the K of spades, which South ruffed. Dummy was put in lead with its lone Ace of hearts. Declarer ruffed another spade. Dummy ruffed the 8 of hearts. Declarer ruffed a third spade. Dummy ruffed declarer's last heart. South overtook dummy's J of clubs with his Q, and won the next three tricks in trumps, picking up all opposing clubs, and giving declarer his first 9 tricks. The remaining 4 tricks were taken with 3 top diamonds and declarer's last trump, giving him his 7-Clubs, doubled, when vulnerable.

Of course South passed, as he should have done. There was no hurry about showing a single long minor suit. Then contracting went: West, 1-Spade; North, 2-Diamonds; East, 2-Spades; South, 4-Clubs; West, 4-Hearts, to show his second suit; North, 6-Hearts; East, 6-Spades; South, 7-Clubs, which West doubled.

As will brief Mr. Ames' explanations of why he dared bid a grand slam, when vulnerable, and fully expect to fulfill his contract, even after being doubled by West, who knew nothing of the fact that South was void of spades.

In the first place, South had played with his partner until he knew just what North's bids meant. Next the hearts bid by North, showing no over in defenders' second long suit, prevented East from showing his

Williamsport Students Enjoy Annual Banquet

The month of May brings to a close many of the school activities of the county. One of the most outstanding events of the year was the junior-senior banquet of the Williamsport High school at the Wardell Party home, Friday evening, at 7:30.

Thirty-six class members, faculty and two guests participated. The class colors of green and white were followed throughout the appointments and the two-course dinner.

Guests were seated at small tables centered with vases of white rose buds, and dainty green nut-cups, holding the place cards, were used as favors. Mrs. Wardell carried out the color scheme in much of the food she served.

Mrs. Ida Ware, assistant principal, acted as toastmistress in the absence of Mr. Dyer, former superintendent, who was ill and unable to attend.

The class was welcomed by Helen Easter, Margie Carmean, responding.

After the dinner the program was continued as follows:

Music, by the senior quartet; class poem, by Harmon Carter; toast by George Miller, principal; music by the senior instrumental quintet; class history by Virginia Betts; class will by Helen Hill; music by the senior quartet; class prophecy by Jean Baker; class farewell by Myrtlemae Roll. The program closed with the singing of the class song "Drifting Along Together."

Those attending were H. J. Bowers, superintendent, and Mrs. Bowers, Mr. and Mrs. George Miller, Mrs. Ida Ware and Miss Helen Betts of the faculty; Mary Miner, Mary Clark, Mary Hastings, Maribel Ater, Helen Hill, Margie Carmean, Virginia Betts, Daisy Jones, Ruth Cook, Helen Easter, June West, Jean Baker, Anna Downing, Myrtlemae Roll, Fern Irvin, Harmon Carter, Eugene Anderson, Everett Tomlinson, George Smith, Harold Gibson, Charles Nelson, Charles Noble, Conway Stonerock, Egbert Hanson, Kerwyn Morrison, Wendell Jones, Ted Corcoran, Lyman Jones, and Herbert Christopher. Miss Jessie Dresbach and William Dunlap were additional guests.

The dinner honored Miss Barch's birthday, which was Thursday.

M. E. Bible Class

The members of the Young Ladies' Bible class of the Methodist church spent an enjoyable evening when they entertained at a Mother-Daughter banquet at the American Hotel Coffee Shop, Friday evening.

The forty members and guests were seated at long tables centered with large bowls of pink roses. Orchid candles were also at advantageous places on the table.

Following the two-course dinner an interesting program in charge of Mrs. N. E. Reichelderfer, Mrs. Paul Johnson, Mrs. Carl Bennett, Mrs. Earl Price and Mrs. M. S. Rinehart was presented.

LANDMAN LEADS NEW HOLLAND TO HONORS ON T

FALL ACE WINS FIRST IN FOUR COUNTY EVENTS

Washington-Twp and Ashville Finish Second and Third at Pickaway-Twp

New Holland, led by the splendid performance of Everett Landman, participating in his final scholastic competition, won the Pickaway-county track and field championship Friday afternoon at the Pickaway-Twp school.

Landman won the shot put, the 220-yard dash, the high jump, and the running broad jump.

Landman's speed and ability assured New Holland the championship from the start of the morning events. Backed by a bunch of willing youths who delighted in seeing their star "going to town", Landman climaxed his excellent athletic career. He has been an all-county center in basketball since he started into high school, and each of his four years has been featured by his track performance. Coach Saunders coaches the New Holland champions.

Washington Strong
The strength of the Washington-Twp team, coached by Wendell Boyer, surprised many. Washington had a bunch of hard-working boys and girls and deserved its place behind the leaders. Ashville was a good third. Jackson's team, which failed to score a point last year, failed 15 plus.

The summary:

"Lord 'elp Me"
Many Circlevillians were in Grove City this afternoon playing, and praying their favorite bang-tails would come through. The theme song should be: "I'm Putting all My Eggs in One Basket." Lord 'elp me if my pony don't come through...

World Loves A Winner

All Pickaway-co loves a winner, so honors today are heaped on the little shoulders of Everett Landman, New Holland's star athlete. The tall boy won four first places Friday afternoon in the annual county competition, and would have taken down more points had he been permitted to run in more events. Landman has been the mainstay in New Holland athletics for several years. His passing to the list of graduates will leave a big place in the village's school activities. Not only is he a splendid athlete, but Ev Landman will be remembered for a long while as one of the best sports to ever don a Bulldog uniform.

CANZONERI WINS OVER MCLARNIN

17,000 Watch Bloody Fight of Veterans

NEW YORK, May 9.—(UP)—Madison Square Garden at 5 minutes to 11 last night, Joe Louis was just a spectator. James J. Braddock was a forgotten man. Jack Dempsey was a figure in the dim and distant past. Barney Ross was an ignored champion.

Nearly 17,000 spectators, peering down from the darkness on the brilliantly-lighted ring, had only thoughts of one fighting man—Tony Canzoneri.

Never will they forget him—not even those who had wagered on the loser. There he stood, bloody but erect, his weary right arm held up by aged Joe Humphries.

Tony Canzoneri, once a boot-black in New Orleans, in his greatest moment of triumph—victor over Jimmy McLarnin in 10 rounds of bruising, brutal battle. The little moon-faced, bull-shouldered Italian who had fought back from the brink of fistiana's graveyard to put a tombstone on Jimmy McLarnin's career.

BOLD VENTURE TO RUN IN RICH CHICAGO RACE

NEW YORK, May 9.—(UP)—Bold Venture, winner of the Kentucky derby, has been nominated for the $15,000 added Chicago, feature of the Hawthorne, Ill., race meet. It was revealed today by Trainer Max Hirsch.

The Chicago derby provides an extra $5,000 incentive for any candidate ever to win the Kentucky derby or the Preakness, so Bold Venture really will be racing for $20,000 added prize.

John Griffith Wins Two Events in C. B. L. Meet

Tigers in Last Place as Westerville Knocks Off Title; Delaware Second; Four Records Set

John Griffith, stellar hurdler, was the only Circleville high school athlete to perform according to form Friday in the Central Buckeye league meet, won by Westerville. The competition was staged on the Ohio Wesleyan university track, Delaware.

Griffith knocked off both his hurdle events, the 220-yard lows and the 120-yard highs. Westerville scored 70½ points, Delaware was second with 52½, Bexley was third with 31, and Circleville trailed with 22. Neither Marysville nor Grandview entered teams.

In addition to Griffith's two first places, other Circleville points were scored by Friley, who took second in the pole vault; Melson, who was fourth in the high jump; Kenny Smith, third in the one-half mile, and Jenkins, second in the 440. The Tiger relay teams won fourth place in both the half and the mile tests.

Jenkins, a star performer last year in the 440 and half mile, did not run the latter event. The time in which Bill Henry of Westerville won the 440 was much slower than the speed in which Jenkins won the contest a year ago.

Bexley Boys Second

Griffith did the 220-low hurdles in 24.2 seconds and the 120-yard highs in 16.8 seconds. Neither time is as fast as he is capable to scoring. Sot of Bexley was second to him in the lows, and Hogan of Bexley trailed him in the high event.

Four new records were established in the competition. Fuller of Westerville did the mile in 4 minutes 48 seconds; Westerville's relay team of Robertson, Secrest, Parker and Adair set a new one-half mark of 1 minute 37.1 seconds; Burch of Delaware scored a record in the one-half mile with a time of 2 minutes 7.5 seconds.

TERRY AND SULLIVAN LEAD LEAGUE HITTERS

NEW YORK, May 9.—(UP)—Bill Terry, New York Giants' manager who has confined his activities largely to a utility role and pinch-hitting, and Billy Sullivan, Cleveland catcher who couldn't make the grade with the White Sox and Reds, are the two leading major league hitters. Terry, who has been to bat 27 times in 12 games, is hitting .558 to lead the National league and Sullivan, who has been up 25 times in 11 games, is hitting .457 to top the American league.

First place winners include: Pole vault: Jones of Westerville, 10 feet 6 inches. Broad jump: Downing of Delaware, 19 feet 7 3/4 inches. High jump: Willey of Delaware, 5 feet 7 1/2 inches. Discus: Jones of Westerville, 110 feet. Shot put: Vandevort of Delaware, 42 feet 5 inches. Javelin: Downing of Delaware, 149 feet 1 inch. One mile run: Fuller of Westerville, 4 minutes 48 seconds. One-half mile run: Burch of Delaware, 2 minutes 7.5 seconds. 440-yard dash: Henry of Westerville, 54.6 seconds. 100-yard dash: Teegardin of Bexley, 10.5 seconds. 220-yard low hurdles: Griffith of Circleville, 24.2 seconds. 120-yard high hurdles: Griffith of Circleville, 16.8 seconds. One mile relay: Delaware. One-half mile relay: Westerville. Medley relay: Delaware. 220-yard dash: Teegardin of Bexley, 22.8 seconds.

Softball Meeting

George E. Hammel, who served last year as president of the recreation hall league, has called a meeting of all members in his office Monday evening. It is to start at 7:30 p.m. Much interest has been manifest in a league in the past season and it is probable a loop will be formed.

TOLEDO SCOTT FAVORED

OXFORD, May 9.—(UP)—Toledo Scott today was the heavy favorite for the second annual renewal of the Ohio-Kentucky interscholastic track meet.

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS

Brubaker, Ohio, defeated Pittsburgh, Pa., in the perfect day at the meet. Two doubles and two strikes drive in three runs to win victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

Remember When?

The first auto club was organized in Circleville.

This club was organized in 1904 with B. Kathe, H. S. Heffner, W. F. Heffner, Charles F. Weaver, Dr. D. V. Courtright, H. S. Hulse, George W. Limebaugh, H. M. Crites and Irwin Boggas as members.

The first autos in Circleville made their appearance in the fall of 1900. Samuel Evans had a one-cylinder Winton and H. M. Crites owned a little Oldsmobile. Mr. Crites' car was 4 1/2 horsepower and steered with a handle. The speed ranged from 6 to 12 miles per hour. Mr. Evans' car gave such poor performance he later sent it back to New York. Other early car owners were Dr. Courtright and Charles F. Weaver.

The first electric was brought to Circleville in 1905 by S. P. Deeds. At one time there were eleven electric in operation in this city.

negotiation of the Ethiopian territory which their comrades in East Africa won in battle.

Participation of the military units in the monster celebration planned for the much-anticipated announcement of annexation was officially announced as all Italy prepared to rejoice in another mass demonstration over Italy's victories in Ethiopia.

Meets at 10 O'clock

The Fascist grand council meets at 10 p. m. in the Palazzo Venezia to approve formally the annexation. At 10:30 p. m., Premier Benito Mussolini presides at a meeting of the council of ministers, to whom the grand council's decision will be presented.

The action will place before the league council meeting Monday an accomplished fact. Already Italian officials and the Italian people have all but forgotten the league, believing that it is now helpless to interfere in anyway.

It will increase Italy's empire to an area of 1,484,370 square miles with a population of 57,841,000.

people. It will end an ancient African empire and signalize the beginning of a new Roman empire. The formula by which Mussolini will accomplish the annexation still was a matter of speculation as the hour for the announcement approached Virginia Gayda, editor of the Journal De Italia and considered close to Mussolini, said it would be "clean-cut, complete, definitive: that which the nation is expecting."

VON HINDENBURG MOORED SAFELY IN NEW JERSEY

richshafen at 4:30 p. m. Wednesday, passed up the Rhine, across Holland, down the English channel, along the English coast, across the Atlantic—breasting, without disturbing the flower vases in its cabins, a torrential rain storm and tossing air currents, and into its American port.

It was sighted over Long Island just before dawn today, in a setting of surpassing beauty, and flew up needle shaped Manhattan island, touching the Empire state building tower, turned down the length of the island again as crowds on Broadway cheered, and in the gathering day arrived at Lakehurst as the sun was warming up.

It was sighted at Lakehurst at 4:43 a. m. EST and two minutes later was over the field. It flew on to the south, turned east and came back, descending slowly, lights in control rooms and comfortable passenger quarters twinkling.

The ground crew of trained navy seamen and army regulars grabbed the landing lines that went out and drew the ship to the mast.

At 5:20 a. m., the minute at which Dr. Kurt Eekener, Zeppelin chief, and Capt. Ernest Lehmann, in active control, had wirelessed that they would arrive, the ship was secured to the locking mast.

It had made the flight in 61 hours 50 minutes, and it had taken 33 hours 32 minutes from the 95 hour, 22 minute record set by the old Graf.

Met By Inspectors

Customs, health, eight immigration and agricultural quarantine men met the ship as they would have met an ocean liner and passed its passengers and mails and freight.

There was a bus waiting to take the passengers into their new waiting room in the hangar.

It was several hours after the Hindenburg was housed in the giant hangar before her passengers were able to clear their baggage through customs officials and push their way through the crowds to airplanes that waited to fly them to New York.

These who made the trans-Atlantic voyage were presented with miniature Zeppelins to wear in their lapels. A merchant sent baskets of strawberries and apples to the women passengers.

Hot dog stands, manned by local firemen, housewives and high school youngsters, enjoyed boom business.
